

Exercise Nine – The First Plot Point

Because Negative Change Arcs are about a descent into darkness, they must begin in a place high enough for the story to descend from. Answer the following questions to help you.

What event occurs at the end of the First Act that causes your character to leave the Normal World and irreversibly begin pursuing her main story goal?

In what way might this event be surprising even after the Inciting Event?

Which of the following best describes your First Plot Point?

A seemingly positive opportunity Something disastrous

What decision on your character's part led her right up to the First Plot Point, making her at least partially responsible for what happens?
